Fellow Racing Fan,

Welcome to Xpressbet's Preakness Wager Guide!

Congratulations to the connections of 2017 Kentucky Derby winner Always Dreaming! Does the colt have what it takes to add the Preakness jewel to his crown and head toward the Big Apple as a potential Triple Crown winner? He figures to be a strong favorite to do just that. However, Preakness isn't a 'walkover' for any Derby champ. He's got to prove himself again--this time with a bull's-eye on his back at a mile and three-sixteenths around the Pimlico oval!

If you hope to accurately predict the Preakness outcome then you're launching the handicapping process in the right place. In order to help you cash a ticket on the race we're proud to present this FREE Preakness Wager Guide. And if you plan to wager on the race that's where Xpressbet can really help. We're the best online, telephone and mobile horserace wagering service in the nation!

As a current account holder you know Xpressbet is the best place to watch and wager on great racing from around the world. Meet The 2017 Preakness Contenders

by Johnny D Xpressbet.com

Always Dreaming

Is it possible that this rapidly developing son of Bodemeister could win the Triple Crown? If so, he'll first need to duplicate his Kentucky Derby-winning effort and topple several familiar Louisville foes, as well as a few talented new shooters. The good news for the $350,000 yearling purchase is that he figures to be heavily favored to do just that.

Lookin At Lee

This deep-closing son of Lookin At Lucky transformed the dreaded Kentucky Derby rail post position into a positive and delivered a rail-skimming, runner-up finish under jockey Corey Lanerie at odds of 33.20-to-1! 'Lee has a bit of history on his side: Risen Star is the last horse to finish in the top three in the Kentucky Derby after breaking from the number one post position and he won both the 1988 Preakness and Belmont Stakes. Kentucky Derby bridesmaids have performed reasonably well in the Preakness— three of the last five Derby runner-ups to compete in the Preakness have finished in the money, including last year's winner Exaggerator. 'Lee has improved in each of 10 lifetime starts, with seven in-the-money finishes. Look for him to be closing with bad intentions in the Pimlico stretch.

Classic Empire

Fourth in the Kentucky Derby following a very rough start, the 2-year-old champ never gave up. Trainer Mark Casse reported after the race that this colt's eye was swollen shut, probably the result of being pelted with mud in the middle of a 20-horse scrum. The eye appears to have healed quickly and the Arkansas Derby winner is headed to Pimlico for another shot at Always Dreaming. His lack of early speed left him with too much to do in Louisville and, unless some other horse forces Always Dreaming's hand early, 'Empire may be chasing him home 'too late' again in the Preakness.

Conquest Mo Money

Second, just one-half length behind Classic Empire in the Arkansas Derby, Conquest Mo Money skipped the Kentucky Derby. His owners saved $50,000 ($150,000 to $200,000) by supplementing to the Preakness instead of the Derby. They can spend some of that saved cash on Baltimore crabs and Black-Eyed Susan cocktails. A real 'outsider,' who raced only at Sunland Park before his Hot Springs sojourn, he's won three of five starts under jockey Jorge Carreno. A relative unknown to racing fans, Carreno, according to Equibase.com, has had just one graded stakes victory—2012 Canadian Derby at Northlands Park aboard Toccette.

Gunnevera

The Xpressbet Fountain of Youth winner's closing style was a disadvantage in the Kentucky Derby, as frontrunners finished first and third. Always Dreaming has soundly defeated him in two consecutive races: Xpressbet Florida Derby and Kentucky Derby. How will Gunnevera turn the tables on that foe in Baltimore? One thing that would help is if new faces Conquest Mo Money and Royal Mo put early pressure on the Derby winner. Without some help up front, the potential feel-good story of the sophomore season featuring Venezuelan connections might not include a victorious Preakness.

Royal Mo

From the connections that brought you Gormley in the Kentucky Derby,

Royal Mo was excluded from competing in that race because he didn't have enough qualified earnings. The silver lining in that cloud is that he joins an assortment of Derby-excluded runners who have done well in the Preakness. Hall of Fame jockey Gary Stevens again will ride 'Mo. Last out, after forcing the early pace in the Santa Anita Derby, 'Mo finished third alongside runner-up Battle of Midway. The latter returned to finish third in the Kentucky Derby.

Dream a Little Dream of Me

by Bob Neumeier NBC Sports Reporter

Analysis: When Gus Kahn penned the lyrics to this song in the 1930s, little did he realize that the verse would be quoted in the aftermath of the 2017 Kentucky Derby. "But in your dreams whatever they be, dream a little dream of me." Mary Ellen Bonomo, one of the gazillion co-owners of ALWAYS DREAMING, coined that name after the actual sport of Thoroughbred racing. To paraphrase, "it's what people do every day." Bingo. ALWAYS DREAMING had been pointed toward the Kentucky Derby by crafty trainer Todd Pletcher and his go-to rider, John Velazquez. Now the horse, trainer and jockey must confront the abbreviated, Preakness Stakes' 14-day turnaround, which may be the regular routine for claiming trainers, but certainly not Todd Pletcher.

Main Contenders: On paper, ALWAYS DREAMING looks like a cinch at 3-5 odds. The early pace in the Preakness looks more to his liking than the cavalry charge at Churchill Downs. He decisively whipped the Derby runners, while the newcomers appear sketchy at best. The "dreams" could be shattered if the favorite "bounces" or "regresses" (which happens a million times in racing), breaks poorly, needs more time off than two weeks, or any other possible problems. As the late Woody Stephens once opined, "There is one way to win a race, and 20,000 ways to lose." Millions of handicappers from Maine to Spain will jump on CLASSIC EMPIRE after his Derby "trouble-line" as second wagering choice.

Value Plays: Should the favorite falter, ROYAL MO is next in line. Hall of Fame resident and rider Gary Stevens cannot get hooked up in a similar fiasco as in the Santa Anita Derby, when three horses (including ROYAL MO) ran as if they were in a Los Alamitos Quarter Horse dash. A more reasonable early pace also could benefit CONQUEST MO MONEY, a decent second in the Arkansas Derby. MULTIPLIER gets a solid number off an Illinois Derby win in late April. The expected race shape will not help Derby runner-up LOOKIN AT LEE. As for the others, HENCE "bounced" in Louisville. GUNNEVERA is "over-the-top." Finally, CLOUD COMPUTING and SENIOR INVESTMENT appear too slow.

Wagering Strategies ($100):

- $20 Exacta Part-Wheel: ALWAYS DREAMING over ROYAL MO, CONQUEST MO MONEY and MULTIPLIER ($60)
- $40 Win: ROYAL MO ($40)

Preakness Pared to a Pair

by Laffit Pincay XBTv.com & NBC Sports Reporter

Analysis: Five. Straight. Favorites. That's incredible. So, ALWAYS DREAMING came through for his Kentucky Derby backers at 9-to-2. For their loyalty, they now will have the pleasure of playing him at 4-to-5 in the Preakness. That's the way it goes. Here's the thing: favorites can win the Derby year after year after year and it really doesn't matter. Winning favorites in the Derby are still going to pay $10, $11, $12. When the chalk wins the Preakness, the price is much shorter, and creativity is reserved for the exotics.

Main Contenders: Bob Baffert had an interesting quote after the Kentucky Derby, saying "CLASSIC EMPIRE is the only horse that can beat ALWAYS DREAMING." I agree with him. It's not creative. They will be the top two betting choices. Nothing I can say hasn't already been said about the Derby win of ALWAYS DREAMING. His combination of God-given ability, tactical speed and endurance is the stuff ... well ... that Derby winners are made of. If there is cause for pause, look to the wet track in Louisville. Remember what happened to Orb in Baltimore after his muddy Derby score. As for CLASSIC EMPIRE in the Derby, that's horse racing. The 2YO champ's difficult path included the foot abscess, back trouble, refusals to work, etc. Just when it looked like the Casse Boys had pulled off a minor miracle with the clock ticking ... boom! The champ got crushed leaving the gate. CLASSIC EMPIRE finished fourth on class alone and needs nothing more than a clean trip for an opportunity to spoil the party looming in New York.

Value Plays: HENCE offers the longer price of the Steve Asmussen-trained closers in respect to Derby runner-up LOOKIN AT LEE. I'll buy the 'He didn't like the track' excuse with the mud-covered HENCE as he did close from 19th to 11th and trained too well at Churchill to ignore. ROYAL MO may benefit long-run from missing the Derby. He's a big, impressive colt who figured to take a little more time to develop. The Derby third of Battle of Midway flatters him with a similar style.

Wagering Strategies ($100):

- $40 Exacta Box: ALWAYS DREAMING and CLASSIC EMPIRE ($80)
- $5 Exacta Part-Wheel: ALWAYS DREAMING and CLASSIC EMPIRE over HENCE and ROYAL MO ($20)

No More Dreams, Just Reality

by Jeff Siegel XBTV.com Analyst

Analysis: The dominating victory by ALWAYS DREAMING in the Kentucky Derby was easily predictable, and so should his impending win in the Preakness. Still, there are those who now will question the colt's ability to reproduce his best form after just two weeks of recovery time. During his six-race career, he's always enjoyed a least a month in between outings. But we can easily judge his state of fitness during the 14-day turnaround by comparing his level of energy with that which he displayed in the few days leading up to his Derby run. Approaching the Derby, ALWAYS DREAMING was a powder keg. A similar amount of enthusiasm during Preakness week would be nice to see.

Main Contenders: Each of the Derby winner's 2017 victories have come by daylight (smallest margin 2 ¾ lengths). More significantly, ALWAYS DREAMING seems immune to traffic trouble and poor racing luck, owing to his extreme athleticism that allows for a quick gate break to secure any early position that jockey John Velazquez desires. The ability to switch off midway – and then quicken when asked – allows for easy adaptability to any pace scenario. Oh, he can handle the mud, too.

Value Plays: The 9-to-2 gift that ALWAYS DREAMING offered in Kentucky is gone forever, so let's try to identify the second and/or third-place finishers. CLASSIC EMPIRE, the victim of a poor trip at Churchill Downs, deserves another chance, and at least has a race to go back to (his G1 Breeders' Cup Juvenile win) that makes him a threat. CLOUD COMPUTING, with just three lifetime starts, has plenty of room for improvement and looks very much like the best of the new shooters. CONQUEST MO MONEY, who finished just a half-length behind EMPIRE in the Arkansas Derby and has been pointing for this race ever since, is on the 'must-consider' list as well.

Wagering Strategies ($100):

- $40 Exacta: ALWAYS DREAMING over CLASSIC EMPIRE and CLOUD COMPUTING ($80)
- $20 Exacta: ALWAYS DREAMING over CONQUEST MO MONEY ($20)

Always Dreaming Extras

He is the sixth straight Kentucky Derby winner that was unbeaten at age 3. The last Derby winner with a 3-year-old defeat was Animal Kingdom in 2011.

He is the latest maiden breaker (January 25) of any Kentucky Derby winner since Broker's Tip (1933) won the Derby as a maiden.

The Dreaming Continues

by Jon White Santa Anita Morning Line Oddsmaker

Analysis: I admit it. I was not a believer in ALWAYS DREAMING going into the Kentucky Derby. But I am now after his 2 ¾-length triumph. Yes, the track was wet. But his victory most certainly was not solely because he relished a wet surface. When racing on a fast track, ALWAYS DREAMING won the Xpressbet Florida Derby earlier this year by five emphatic lengths, proof that he does not require a wet surface in order to perform admirably. Now 4-for-4 this year, ALWAYS DREAMING appears poised to come right back and win the Preakness, a double that has been achieved in 10 of the last 20 years. CLASSIC EMPIRE did quite well to finish fourth in the "Run for the Roses" despite nearly getting knocked down immediately after the start and emerging from battle with a swollen right eye. Would CLASSIC EMPIRE have won with a good trip? I doubt it, since he ended up 8 ¾ lengths behind ALWAYS DREAMING. However, I think CLASSIC EMPIRE could have finished second with better racing luck.

Main Contenders: After they finished 1-2-4 going 1 ¼ miles in Louisville, ALWAYS DREAMING, LOOKIN AT LEE and CLASSIC EMPIRE seem main contenders going 1 3/16 miles in Baltimore. According to recent history, the 2017 Preakness winner most likely is someone who competed in the Derby. That's because just 3 of the last 33 Preakness winners (Red Bullet in 2000, Bernardini in 2006 and Rachel Alexandra in 2009) did not run in the Derby.

Value Plays: ROYAL MO did not get the opportunity to participate in the Kentucky Derby, stuck on the also-eligible list due to insufficient points to draw into the race. Even though the odds seem stacked against ROYAL MO winning the Preakness because he didn't start in the Kentucky Derby, he ran a sneaky-good third in the Santa Anita Derby when a pace factor all the way after breaking from post 13. The final time of the 1 1/8-mile Santa Anita Derby was slow (1:51.16), but the race gained a measure of respectability when runner-up Battle Of Midway subsequently finished third in the Kentucky Derby.

Wagering Strategies ($100):

'California' Here We Come

California-based jockeys have won the Preakness each of the past five years, including Kent Desormeaux, Victor Espinoza (twice), Gary Stevens and Mario Gutierrez. Kentucky-based Jesus Castanon captured the 2011 Preakness aboard Shackleford prior to this streak.

Odds-On Favorites

The last 4 Preakness favorites have been odds-on propositions: Nyquist (3-5), American Pharoah (4-5), California Chrome (1-2) and Orb (3-5). They own a 4: 2-0-1 record. Nyquist at 3-5 last year became the 13th odds-on favorite to lose the Preakness.

Popularity Contest

The Preakness favorite is 72-for-142, scoring just over the 50% mark all-time.

Upset Alternatives

by Dick Jerardi Daily Racing Form Columnist

Analysis: The evidence is not overwhelming, but a pretty good case can be made that the rail was the best part of the main track over Kentucky Derby weekend at Churchill Downs. The very best evidence is the overhead NBC shot of the far turn when 33-1 LOOKIN AT LEE, hard to the rail, was absolutely flying on a part of the strip that just looked different and more compacted. Derby winner ALWAYS DREAMING was on or close to the rail for just about the entire trip. Thus, the 1-2 Derby finishers benefitted from great trips on what certainly appeared to be the best part of the track. If you believe that, and start analyzing the Preakness with that in mind, you have to look for a way to beat the favorite.

Main Contenders: ALWAYS DREAMING is 4-for-4 for Todd Pletcher and none of the races have been close, a total winning margin of 23 lengths. This does not happen by accident. This is a very talented colt, clearly the best Pletcher has brought to the Triple Crown series. With the speed that gets him great position race after race, ALWAYS DREAMING is again the horse to beat, but this time at 6-5 or so instead of 9-2. CLASSIC EMPIRE had a Murphy's Law trip in the Derby. Whatever could go wrong, did go wrong. Yet, the colt was still trying in the stretch to be fourth. LOOKIN AT LEE has run in seven consecutive graded stakes, but has won none of them. He is a bet-against. CLOUD COMPUTING has the look of a horse that could be about ready to explode if he gets the right setup.

Value Plays: CONQUEST MO MONEY never stopped trying after a race-long speed duel in the Arkansas Derby. His Beyer figure has gone up in every start. He could be very dangerous if he can somehow get loose on the lead.

Wagering Strategies ($100):

- $50 Exacta Box: CLOUD COMPUTING and CLASSIC EMPIRE ($100)

Always Dreaming Extras

He is the first Kentucky Derby winner to break his maiden as a 3-year-old since Monarchos in 2001. He also won the Florida & Kentucky Derbies.

He is the 24th Florida Derby alum to win the Kentucky Derby. The Gulfstream event passes the Blue Grass Stakes as the most prolific prep race.

He is the 15th horse to win Florida Derby and Kentucky Derby.

He is the first starting Derby favorite that was NOT the morning line favorite since Street Sense in 2007, when Curlin was the morning line choice.

Note: In 2009, the morning line favorite (I Want Revenge) scratched.

Crown Try a Reality

by Steve Byk At the Races (SiriusXM) Host

Analysis: As mentioned annually, runners contesting the Preakness off favorable (or forgivable) Derby efforts should be the foundation of your wagers. In the last 15 editions of the Preakness, 13 winners of the Woodlawn Vase arrived from Louisville after overwhelmingly positive results. Bernardini (2006) and Rachel Alexandra (2009) were the exceptions with obvious extenuating circumstances involved. The 2017 Preakness decisions start with 3 of the Derby Top 4 as runner-up LOOKIN AT LEE and compromised CLASSIC EMPIRE join ALWAYS DREAMING at Pimlico. GUNNEVERA (7th) adds Mike Smith and fast track-seeking HENCE (11th) also move from Louisville to Baltimore.

Main Contenders: It's hard to envision any of the 5 classic newcomers denying ALWAYS DREAMING a second crown jewel, but CLASSIC EMPIRE will enter the Preakness gate looking a lot like Derby-doomed Lookin at Lucky did when he faced and bested Pletcher's previous wet-track Derby winner Super Saver in 2010. Assuming a cleaner break, CLASSIC EMPIRE figures to employ stalk-and-pounce tactics on ALWAYS DREAMING, who should face some pace entanglements from CONQUEST MO MONEY and possibly ROYAL MO. If ALWAYS DREAMING fails at Old Hilltop, CLASSIC EMPIRE will be the likely reason.

Value Plays: CLOUD COMPUTING could be a beneficiary of any heated duel on the front end and could be a $20 horse. Despite Exaggerator's success here last year, the overall record of Derby runners-up a fortnight later is poor. With that in mind, GUNNEVERA may be preferable to LOOKIN AT LEE as a deep closer for the exotics, adding Smith and at perhaps a 50% better number than the Derby's place horse.

Wagering Strategies ($100):

- $5 Trifecta Part-Wheel: ALWAYS DREAMING, CLASSIC EMPIRE with ALWAYS DREAMING, CLASSIC EMPIRE, CLOUD COMPUTING with ALWAYS DREAMING, CLASSIC EMPIRE, CLOUD COMPUTING, GUNNEVERA, CONQUEST MO MONEY, HENCE, LOOKIN AT LEE ($100)
